

Sanjay Bhatt, DDS, MD

From New Hartford, New York, Dr. Bhatt pursued oral surgery because it allows him to practice both dentistry and medicine to better care for patients. With his extensive training, he can manage a broad scope of conditions both in and outside of the oral cavity, including pathology, trauma, infection, and dentoalveolar issues.

After earning his bachelor's degree in English from the SUNY at Buffalo, Dr. Bhatt earned his Doctor of Dental Surgery (DDS) degree from the SUNY at Buffalo School of Dental Medicine and his Medical Degree (MD) from the Wayne State University School of Medicine. He completed his oral and maxillofacial surgery residency at the Ascension Macomb-Oakland Hospital.

Upon visiting the town of Greenville, Dr. Bhatt and his wife felt a natural connection to the area and he knew that joining the Carolinas Center for Oral & Facial Surgery team was the right choice. He enjoys the comradery of this talented group of specialists and appreciates the ability to learn from senior doctors and staff members.

Dr. Bhatt wants his patients to feel welcomed and works hard to create a friendly and nurturing environment. He takes the time to answer every question and proceeds through treatment at a pace that is comfortable for his patients. He considers it a great privilege to treat a patient's problem and restore their health while providing them with a beneficial and enjoyable clinical experience.
