

TJ Robbins, DMD

Dr. Robbins helps patients understand their condition and supports them in making meaningful treatment plans, by utilizing a combination of medicine and dentistry. His motto is: "Helping to heal the hurt that no one sees." He listens thoroughly and takes the extra time to understand every patient's situation and their unique needs.

Dr. Robbins grew up in a rural area where he learned the importance of community, hard work, and teamwork. He loves working alongside the skilled team at the Carolinas Center for Oral & Facial Surgery who care about their patients, staff, and community. He enjoys practicing the full scope of orofacial pain, including treatment of temporomandibular muscle and joint (TMJ) disorders, sleep breathing disorders (obstructive sleep apnea), trigeminal neuralgia and other neuropathic pains, migraines and other headache disorders, neck pain, and other painful conditions.

After earning his bachelor's degree in biotechnology from Utah Valley University, Dr. Robbins graduated dental school at the University of Pittsburgh. While studying dentistry, he began experiencing jaw pain, neck pain, and headaches. He realized that many of his patients faced similar circumstances. After seeing multiple doctors, Dr. Robbins discovered the field of orofacial pain. He decided to dedicate his career to helping patients with these conditions. He completed a residency in Orofacial Pain and Dysfunction at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Education and Residency

- BS in Biotechnology—Utah Valley University
- Doctor of Dental Medicine (DMD)—University of Pittsburgh
- Orofacial Pain and Dysfunction Residency—University of California, Los Angeles

Certifications

- Diplomate of the American Board of Orofacial Pain (ABOP)
- Member of the American Headache Society

Personal Interests

Dr. Robbins' favorite thing to do is spend time with his wife and kids. He loves trying new foods, exercising, spending time on the beach, riding ATVs, and being in nature. He also enjoys serving his community through his church and other volunteer positions—and he speaks Spanish!